Course Title: Ethics and the Legal Environment

Credit Decision: Full Credit Recommended

Comments To Student

The request has been performed and completed for MT 310 course (Ethical and Legal Environment). You effectively communicated your overall educational goal, walking me through the autobiography explaining how you learned what you know and reasons behind many of your experiences. Your educational goal statement gave direction and purpose to the decisions you have made and will be making about your education. It is clearly written and provides specific information on where you plan on going. Your expanded resume was clearly written, well organized in chronological order and provided specific experiences in which learning was acquired. Your experiences align to the MT 310 course for which you are petitioning credit. Your learning autobiography explained in detail how you learned what you know, how you solved problems and some of the reasons behind your experiences. Your autobiography consistently provided how your learning has grown as a result of your experiences. You consistently demonstrated learning throughout your portfolio that is reflective of what is being taught in the course along with the learning statements provided for the MT 310 course. You worked as a facilitator, organizer and manager for many years. You deal with customers and employees in ethical and legal issues. You demonstrate a basic understanding of ethics that meets the objectives of MT 310 course. You have training in discrimination and harassment. You attended workshops in standards of ethics standards. Your work enables to know business laws and regulations. You analyze and evaluate the effects of ethical decisions in the stakeholders. Warm Regards,

Course Title: Operations Management

Credit Decision: Full Credit Recommended

Comments To Student

You provided a well documented and well articulated summary of your experiences and showed how these appropriately fit for MT435. When you stated "Led stores in store manager absence as well as planning, organizing, leading and controlling in the management capacity for upwards of $120 million in sales.", you showed the ability to analyze key performance indicators to ensure process effectiveness. Your ability to oversee cost for the store demonstrated an understanding of inventory management procedures. You also demonstrated that you tracked markdowns and throwaways to ensure accounting controls were in place. Good work!

Course Title: Consumer Behavior

Credit Decision: Full Credit Recommended

Comments To Student

MT459: Consumer Behavior COURSE OUTCOMES Course Outcomes: By the end of this course, you should be able to: 1. Explain the impact of consumer behavior on marketing strategy – Outcome Met: Letter from Lori Hill, Devel. Manager, Walmart. He met with the Chief Operating Officer of Walmart to understand the financial impact of attachment sales corporate wide, the effects of inventory management on individual stores and our customers and then participated in a buyer/merchandise event to compare competitor strategies, dissect market share trends, understand how store layout determined consumer behavior and how we could leverage existing resources to enhance our brand image, as well as support our team of electronics associates in exceeding the customers' expectations. 2. Analyze the consumer research process - Outcome Met: Letter from Lori Hill, Devel. Manager, Walmart. As an addition to the electronics success, I assigned Brian to participate in the design of a corporate program to enhance our overall customer service in every area of the store, specifically at the check outs. His role included analyzing the customer satisfaction data, comparing our results to best in class and evaluating store sales versus satisfaction ratings. In determining a direct correlation between the two, we then set out on the process of providing our stores and Associates a consistent motto, Customer Must Win, and supporting them with an effective, yet simplistic program to build customer service skills, create a customer friendly environment and provide a process to recognize outstanding individuals and stores, thereby creating positive engagement and contributions throughout our stores. 3. Explain the importance of market segmentation - Outcome Met: Letter from Courtney Lawson, Regional Leadership Champion – Walmart. 4. Explain the importance of consumer learning theory - Outcome Met: Letter from Lori Hill, Devel. Manager, Walmart. Customer Must Win, and supporting them with an effective, yet simplistic program to build customer service skills, create a customer friendly environment and provide a process to recognize outstanding individuals and stores, thereby creating positive engagement and contributions throughout our stores. 5. Evaluate cross-cultural consumer analysis- Outcome Met: Letter from Courtney Lawson, Regional Leadership Champion - Walmart Assistant Store Management. Experience Wal-Mart TN Maintained the shopping experience for customers in the stores and was responsible for business growth. 6. Evaluate the consumer decision-making process - Outcome Met: Letter from Lori Hill, Devel. Manager, Walmart. Brian's duties required much interaction with our customers to get their input on the design of the material, when testing to ensure we were getting the desired result and it was operational in a store environment and when rolling out the initial program to support and monitor the execution.

Course Title: Management Policy and Strategy

Comments To Student

I appreciate the information shared, but your write up did not show that you understood or had created SWOT analysis within your experience. You shared information on your taking responsibility "for training, consulting, evaluating and implementation of new company programs and management development for newly promoted managers", but this did not demonstrate SWOT analysis or the ability to create a business plan. You opened the store and oversaw aspects of the store, but did not show that you understood or could apply the ability to craft, communicate, implement, and monitor a strategic plan, reformulating it as the need arises. You provided appropriate information on what you did to help run the store, but in order to get credit for MT460, you needed to show that you had created business plans and had provided appropriate SWOT analysis. I did not see evidence of that in the write up for this course credit analysis.

Course Title: Building Customer Sales and Loyalty

Credit Decision: Full Credit Recommended

Comments To Student

Your background and success with Walmart is impressive. And your request for credit in Customer Sales & Loyalty fits with your original intentions of being a paramedic. I believe there are two strong behaviors in people, - those who give and those who take. Many people who enter business are usually takers. With your initial desire to be a "giver" (those that help others) I would think your career path exemplifies a desire to help customers, employees and the company. Caring about others is a very good trait to have in management within a retail organization. Your experience in building customer sales and loyalty meet the course needs, and your use of academic terms and college level writing make it much easier to say - I recommend full credit.

*Note from the Kaplan University Prior Learning Assessment Center:

Credit will not be applied as per this recommendation. There are no unfulfilled requirements towards which this credit can apply. All Open Electives are fulfilled or are prescribed (the remaining Open Elective requirement must be fulfilled by IT 133 Software Applications, a prerequisite to required course MM 255 Business Math).

Thank you for completing the portfolio assessment process. If you have questions about your credit recommendation, please see Frequently Asked Questions in the electronic Portfolio Development and Assessment System.

Please note: Kaplan University reserves the right to transcript the credit recommendations as appropriate to your specific degree requirements. If you have petitioned for credits that do not fit within your degree requirements, Kaplan University may not transcript the credits recommended by the Faculty Evaluator.

Thank you.
